And Finally

The Original Engine 17... a Loaner?

With the pending restoration of Engine 17, we thought we'd feature a photo of the original E17. The problem is that it appears Station 17 opened on April 21, 1951 with a spare or loaner fire engine. The top photo below, taken in April '51, shows an "open cab" Mack pumper (not standard for new fire stations at the time), and there is no "17" on the side of the rig. By contrast, the lower photo, taken in October '51, shows a "sedan cab" Mack pumper with "17" on the side next to the captain's left elbow. So what's the explanation? We'll never know for sure, but one theory is that the sedan cab E17 was loaned to Station 1 for a few months. Three days before Station 17 opened, Squad 1, a pumper out of Station 1, was wrecked in a collision with Truck 2. The newly assigned E17 may have been loaned to the much busier Station 1 to replace Squad 1.
