

BUSINESS OPEN STREETS

OUTDOOR EXPANDED SPACE

1) What is the Business Open Streets program?

To support COVID-19 recovery, the City of Long Beach is providing temporary parklets & sidewalk space to provide physically-distanced options for restaurants and other select businesses in the public right-of-way.

2) What outdoor options are available?

Businesses can submit an online interest form, where they can choose from sidewalk dining, or a temporary parklet in the roadway or parking lane. Businesses can also request free 10-minute loading sign. See diagram for examples.

3) How much does it cost and what's included?

The application process is free to businesses. Public Works will provide barricades as needed, but establishments will provide furniture, aesthetic materials, and parklet deck, which is encouraged but not required.

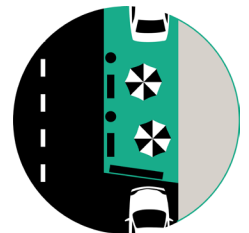

4) How long will the temporary Open Streets last?

This program will remain in place through October 31, 2020, or until physically-distanced services are no longer required. The City is working to streamline the permanent parklet permit so that businesses may transition these spaces to permanent parklets upon termination of the program.
